

ABSTRACT

There is disclosed a system including an access right setting apparatus and manager terminal in which a user having an 5 access to a resource of a network limited issues a request, and thereby an access right can easily be set, and the user who desires to access the resource describes set contents of the access right, such as the resource, time, and access content, in access request information 303, and transmits the information to 10 an access right setting apparatus 100 for managing the access right in the system. The received access request information 303 is transferred to a manager of the resource by access request information transfer means 102, and the manager simply confirms a request content and makes judgment of approval, so that the 15 access right setting apparatus 100 automatically sets the access right.